Title: Importance of Youth in the view of Rasool (S.A.W)

Summary:

The Rasool (S.A.W) has extended extraordinary significance to the youth. Declaring them the back bone of the body of Muslim Ummah, he (S.A.W) always honoured them and respected their opinion. He did not even followed his own decision in reverence to the youngsters. Moreover, the Rasool (S.A.W) himself was an embodiment of noble virtues like honesty, chastity, modesty and sense of responsibility in his young age. Before becoming Prophet, he (S.A.W) earned the titles of Al-Sadiq and Al-Amin. His life is an ideal example for youth to follow and attain nobility in character. Furthermore, Rasool (S.A.W) himself wanted his youth to be an ideal and civilized one. He (S.A.W) also declared modesty as an integral path of faith. He (S.A.W) wanted his youth to practise the teachings of the Quran and the Sunnah in every part of life. Therefore, youth must also strictly abide by the tenets of Islam and attain knowledge of the Secret of Rasool to practise it throughout the life. Only in this way, they can attain purity in character and ultimate success here-after.

Q. No. 2 (ii)

The beloved Rasool (S.A.W) values the passion and feelings of youth. In order to honour and respect the youth, the Rasool (S.A.W) went against his own opinion and followed the decision of youth during the time when battle of Uhud began. He (S.A.W) decided to fight in an open field rather than allowing the enemy to besiege. He (S.A.W) made this decision only because of youth.

Our Examination System

Examination is a process of analyzing the abilities of students and to know what they have learned. There are many forms of examination like annual, term exams, monthly, weekly or any other. It is an essential part of the student's education.

Acquiring education is simple but one can only analyze oneself when one goes through this process. In fact, education also demands proper implementation which is possible through exams. Thus, exams are as necessary as education but unfortunately, in our country, this department still has many flaws which cannot be cleared.

It is binding upon a student to pass through examination for the declaration of his degree at any level, but we see that most of the students are afraid of exams. It is a common psychology of students that they do not want to give exams. They are often highly stressed during exams. It may be due to various reasons. First of all, students are scared regarding their result, whether, they will pass or fail the exam. Fear of failure leads to tension and stress among the students. Furthermore, students cannot learn large amount of course and attempt the exam. They are extremely nervous and to extent of this fear often, even an intelligent and brilliant student is scared of examination.

In Pakistan, examination system has a lot of faults, as a result, our education sector still remains backward. First of all, there is a problem of multiple systems of exams. Each city has its own board which conducts exams. There are different curricula and different exams.

Secondly, our examination system is based on old curricula and conventional technologies. Although, many modern techniques and innovations have made examination system better. Moreover, it is divided into written and practical examination, which takes a long duration and a student gets tired. Also, there is almost no check and balance in the centres of examinations. Cheating and paper leak is very common. Students most often solve their paper by wrong means. Also, there is lack of management in conduction of exams which provides a great setback.

In order to make our examination system much effective, we should take adequate measures for its improvement. Government should increase budget for educational sector so that conduction and quality of examination could be made better. Furthermore, examination system shall be equipped with modern technology to make it be made compatible to international level. Pattern of examination shall be reinforced such that students can give their best in exams. Adequate steps shall be taken to control cheating and unfair means. By these measures, we can make our examination system much better.

To conclude, examination is important for students but it should be carried out in such a way that student can utilize its skills and talents rather than cramming. Students should also give exams in a true manner rather than by unfair means. Government should also make efforts for improvement of examination system, so that students can get rid of their fears and perform exams in a much better way.

Subject : Condition of Parks In My Area

Introduction :

As per the report assigned to me, I have gathered the following facts for your kind persual. These facts will highlight the impacts of this issue.

Findings :

Parks hold great importance in a city. They are a source of greenery. They do not only beautify the place but also provide fresh air. Unfortunately, out of about 300 parks in my area, 250 are completely deteriorated. Others are also not maintained in a good condition. Most of them lack sufficient plantation as well. Various reasons contribute to this unbearable situation regarding parks. As the accommodate the increasing population. Also, parks are not cared by authorities. Due to irresponsibility on their behalf, garbage is not disposed off. The plants and trees are not regularly watered as a result they become dry and with. Moreover, benches and swings are also broken in most parks and no steps have been taken for their repair. Most parks are subjected to illegal construction of buildings on their land. Due to such a loss of parks, source of recreation and beauty for people is near to end. Following table shows division of land for different purpose. It is evident that parks occupy the least percentage which is continuously decreasing.

Housing Societies	50.1.
Malls and other recreational spots	12.1.
Offices	20.1.
Markets	15.1.
Parks	3.1.

Conclusion:

Thus it will be right to say that excessive decrease in parks is an alarming situation. Parks hold great significance for people. Commercialization and negligence of authorities contributes to this scenario.

Q. No. 6 (Page 3/3)

Suggestions :

1. The government should take steps for conservation of parks and also initiate tree plantation campaigns on city level.
2. People responsible for illegal construction at the land reserved for parks should be dealt with an iron hand.
3. The management system of horticulture authority should be made more efficient and effective.
